NUMBER 237

The latest from the family of Colonel Ingersoll, is that one of his daughters has joined the Presbyterian church. There might be a stranger thing than this.

Mr. Price announces that he is a candidate for Speaker of the Assembly. If he draws all the votes of the party to which he belongs, he will get one vote—his own.

It is said that Secretary Blaine has cabled his thanks to Baron Von Stenben, of Germany, for naming his son after him, and has ordered the finest solid silver cup that Tiffany, of New York can make, which will be sent to young Blaine Von Stenbens.

There probably never was a President's message so gently criticised by the opposition party as President Arthur's. Using a popular phrase, it takes well. Taking the parts not numbered with the reports of the various departments, and it is one of the most timely and judicious annual messages ever sent to Congress.

Guineau has a novel idea of what depravity is. When the experts were on the stand, and some mention was made of the prisoner's depravity, he shouted, "I have been a consistent Christian all my life, and because I committed adultery to get rid of a woman I did not love, removed a President, and owe a few hundred dollars, it is a burning shame for this prosecution to attempt to blacken my character."

The reports from France say that a committee has been appointed to take into consideration the matter of disposing of the large stock of crown jewels which are now bothering the government and which there is no one to wear. The committee now propose to sell the stock except a few presents from foreign monarchs, and a sword worth $500,000. Among the jewels to be thrown on the market is the Regent diamond, bought in Madras for Louis XV. for $650,000. This is the most perfect brilliant in Europe, but it is said to be not the most valuable. It is a magnificent jewel, but Republican France has no use for it.

The Gazette is in receipt of a poster from Laredo, Texas, announcing that the annual fair will commence in that town on December 24th, and will continue one month. The leading features of the "four weeks of fun and jollification" which are announced in highly colored hand-bills, are male races, hand-fights, cock fights, and bull fights are to take place during the feast, and celebrated bull-fighters from the interior of Mexico have been especially employed for the occasion. This will be a genuine Texan feast, with not only cock and bull fights, but crowned by other fights for which the South is celebrated.

When Captain Isaac Bassett was first appointed judge in the United States Senate, it was thought extravagance to have more than one page on the floor at a time. He was twelve years old, and his father wanted him to get an appointment, and while Daniel Webster was anxious to have young Bassett appointed, the other Senators thought two pages would be too many. Webster, however, succeeded in getting Bassett appointed, and he has served constantly since that time—fifty years; and an unprecedented thing in the Senate of the United States the other day was the announcement made by David Davis, that a doorkeeper had served fifty years, and in the name of that body he wished him health and happiness. It was an extraordinary compliment, but one well deserved.

Wormly, the colored juror, in the Guiteau case, is sick, and Scoville says if he becomes so ill that he can not sit on the jury, the defense will refuse to let the case go on with eleven. He now hopes that something may turn up to arrest the case until what he calls the public cry of blood is over. He also says in case of a verdict of guilty he will move an arrest of judgment on the plea of no jurisdiction. The President having died outside the district, Scoville is much afraid Guiteau will yet be assassinated. He continues to receive many threatening letters. Mr. Scoville appears to have changed his course of action in this trial. He started out on the theory that Guiteau was insane at the time of the murder, and that would be his only plea. If it was proved that he was not insane, then he thought he ought to be hanged. This game now is to take advantage of every technical point to save Guiteau's neck from the gallows.

We are informed that there is a young lady of Rochelle, Illinois, named Libbie Winkler, who seems to be a second edition of John Carter, of England. A few years ago she had both arms taken off close to her shoulders by falling before a reaper. Since then she has learned to write a good "hand" by holding the pen between her teeth. But she has learned to do much more than this. She has executed a number of very neat and creditable paintings in oil, holding the brush in the same manner as she holds the pen. It requires marvelous perseverance to accomplish much under such discouraging circumstances. John Carter, whose spinal column became permanently injured so as to paralyze his entire body from his neck to his feet, lay on his bed for fourteen years, with no power to move any part of his body but his head, and by painstaking industry he became one of the great painters of England. Holding the brush between his teeth with his head held up by a pillow, he sent the brush over the little canvas before him with amazing rapidity, and Sir Edwin Landseer once said that the delicate touches of Carter's brush, could not be surpassed by the most accomplished artist in England. Carter painted the "Katie Catcher" for Queen Victoria for which he received $16,000, and Lord Palmerston also owned one of two of his best works. If Miss Winkler has artistic taste with perseverance, there is ground for the strongest hope that she will become an artist of pronounced ability.

FRELINGHUYSEN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 12.—The nomination of ex-Senator Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey, to be Secretary of State was sent by the President to the Senate to-day, and confirmed. A few days will probably elapse before Mr. Frelinghuysen assumes the duties of the office. Mr. Blaine has put the State department in order, and will be ready for the reception of his successor whenever he chooses to enter. The ex-Secretary will reside here during the winter. Washington has been his winter home for many years. Mr. Blaine's new residence, near the British Legation, is almost completed, but he will not occupy it until next spring.

A WILY WITNESS.

Dr. Edward Charles Spitzka Proves One.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—The combat of words in the criminal court-room to-day was highly entertaining. Davidge and Corkhill fenced all day with Dr. Edward Charles Spitzka, a young, brilliant New York specialist in diseases of the mind and nervous system, to the delight of the audience, and came out second best. Dr. Spitzka left the stand to keep a professional engagement; at 3 o'clock the court adjourned, weary in body and in mind, but a conscious victor. Dragged here under a writ of attachment, having disobeyed a writ of subpoena, and compelled by the court to answer the questions put to him, he occupied a strong position, rendered almost impracticable by his thorough acquaintance with the general and with the particular subtleties of cross-examination. He held his own under an unusually severe cross-examination extending through both sessions of to-day, and which may extend through the two sessions of to-morrow. The prosecution is trying to get him to admit something in his record, if not in his evidence, on which to hang a crushing remark to-morrow in the cross-examination. Spitzka, who is a fresh, blonde, with a good face fringed with sandy whiskers and ornamented with a sandy mustache, well-informed, with quick perceptions and a retentive memory, came on the stand prepared for all that was to come, and left the stand with honor to himself. He worsted Davidge and Corkhill.

Boiled down, his testimony is to the effect that Guiteau is a moral monstrosity—an insane man; that he was born with a malformed brain, which has misdirected his whole life. He thinks the assassin ought to be incarcerated in an insane asylum. He is not allowed to say whether he considers him legally responsible. On the whole, he was a strong witness for the defense, but his testimony will be flatly contradicted by a dozen experts summoned by the government. Guiteau was, on the whole, well behaved.

CASUALTY.

MILWAUKEE, December 12.—This afternoon an overloaded freight elevator in the tannery of the Pfister & Vogel company fell a distance of sixty feet, killing Fred Egenbradt outright, and fatally injuring Christian Hoyer, foreman; Otto Gruenwald, Aug. Uecker, and Fred Kurch. The men had loaded 900 pounds of leather upon the platform, and had stepped upon it to ride down, contrary to the rules of the establishment. The pulley beam broke, and all were precipitated to the ground floor. Hoyer, the foreman, is a man of family, and about 60 years of age. He cannot recover. Aug. Uecker's spine is injured, and Gruenwald's injuries are internal.

PROMISSION.

LEAVENWORTH, Kansas, December 12.—Public opinion in Leavenworth is disposed to look upon St. John's proclamation, issued Saturday, offering rewards to be paid out of subsequent legislative appropriations to lead to the conviction of the violators of the prohibitory law, and punishment of county and city officials who fail to enforce the law, as a piece of adroitness, unbecoming of the Governor of the State. They also feel indignant that half a dozen are singled, when it is notorious that the law is violated almost everywhere in the State just as flagrantly. The belief is, however, that the proclamation will be as fruitless to suppress the liquor traffic as the law itself has been.

FATAL FALL.

A Son of J. P. Coates, the Thread Manufacturer, Fatally Injured.

LA CROSSE, Dec. 12.—The young man who was so seriously injured near Winona by falling off a freight-train into a cattle-guard and having several cars pass over him, and conveyed to this city, died here this afternoon. The best medical assistance was furnished him, to no avail. It was known from the time of the accident that he could not recover, on account of the nature of his injuries, and he was so informed. His name was George Coates, and he served in the capacity of brakeman. Little was known of him, and when his true condition and circumstances were known some inquiries were made concerning his friends. Nothing definite could be learned, and when informed last evening that he could not live he said: "Bore, I suppose my father should know of my whereabouts and how I was hurt and died. I am a son of J. P. Coates, the thread manufacturer." This matter will be fully investigated.

PATTI IN ORATORIO.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 12.—The auction sale of the choice of reservations for the oratorio of the "Messiah" at Music Hall December 28, at which Miss Patti is engaged to sing the soprano part, began at 10 o'clock this forenoon. The premiums bid were additional to the regular price of $250 a seat. The first choice was bought by A. C. Shortholt at $25. He took one seat. The second choice was $10, and the price gradually decreased until at the adjournment of the sale, at half-past 12, the premiums was a little above $3 a seat. More than 400 seats were sold. The total sales for the day were slightly over 1,000 seats, one-third of the house, at an average premium of $3.50, making the average cost of a seat $9. It is thought now the entire house will be sold by auction.

OIL INSPECTION.

MADISON, Dec. 12.—J. V. Reeve, State supervisor of inspection of illuminating oils, filed his annual report with the Governor this afternoon. During the past fiscal year 79,908 barrels of oil were inspected in this State, of which 77,225 were approved and 2,683 rejected. The local inspectors collected $819.76 in fees, to which was added the State supervisor's fee of $1,590.17, making the gross fees $1,049.92. The supervisor is of the opinion that the regulations in the test made by the last Legislature were not such as to increase safety, and that any further reduction would defeat the object of the law. Of the several reported kerosene accidents this year none were attributed to poor oil, and none to actual explosions. In several instances oil of the lowest grade would have caused much greater loss of life and property. Oil of the present legal grade is less safe than the oil required by the statute of 1880, and it is not used with very great care if accidents are to be avoided. It is recommended that the provisions of the law be extended so as to include oil used for heating or culinary purposes. Instances are given of several accidents which have happened the past year through the use of oil stoves.

THE CIGARMAKERS.

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 12.—The striking cigar-makers and members of the various trades-unions held a mass meeting at Leichterkrantz hall this evening, fully 700 being in attendance. Mr. Strasser, President of the Cigarmaker's International Union was present and addressed the meeting at great length. He warned the strikers to be peaceful, but stuck together. He said that the International Union had $100,000 in cash to back the strikers, and they could hold out for five years. Richard Powers, of the Chicago Seamen's Union, made a speech. Delegates from Detroit and other places addressed the meeting. It is rumored that the cigar manufacturers are weakening and a compromise may be effected.

FEARFUL AFFLICTION.

MANTOWOC, Wis., Dec. 12.—The bodies of two of the little Johnson boys, who were drowned while skating on Saturday last, have been recovered. The third is still in the river. When the terrible news of the loss of her three sons—8, 10 and 12 years—was broken to the mother, she fell into a swoon from which she has not yet recovered.

Jones went to a theatre the other evening. The play was bad, the acting worse. On all sides Jones' friends were hissing both. "You take it comfortably," said a friend to Jones. "I came in on an order, and I don't feel at liberty to express an adverse opinion," was the reply. Presently, however, Jones rose, indignantly, indignation in every line of his face, "By Jove, I must go out and pay!" he exclaimed.

There was a ludicrously sudden descent from the sublime to the ridiculous when a clergyman, preaching on the "Ministry of Angels," suddenly observed, "I hear a whisper," the change of tone started one of the deacons, who sat bolt upright from a drowsy mood, and springing to his feet he cried, "It's the boys in the gallery!"

English tourist (in Ireland).—"Tell me, waiter, at what hour does the first train leave for Clonmel?" "At 10 o'clock," said the waiter. "Is it the furthest train, or?" "I'm not rightly sure. The train leaves up to leave at half-past nine—but fix it goes at ten now, and there's no furthest train now at all at all. But I'll ax at the bar, sor!"

A Philosopher.
"My son," said the aged philosopher, as he got his back braced against a bale of hay on the wharf, "it's all in knowing how. For instance, nine out of ten people who go on a steamboat most excursion suffer with the crowd and jam. What idiots! I eat an onion five minutes before going aboard, and, as a result, have two chairs to sit on, while you have to stand up. I enjoy the same cool breezes, see the same scenery, and come home refreshed and serene. One simple onion does the business."

"You chase a street-car, and then stand up after you get in. Do I? Never! When I want a car I fall lame. The driver stops short on seeing my condition, and I no sooner enter the car than some one gives me a seat. It's only the difference between a walk and a limp, and yet you never thought of it."

"Most men who use tobacco carry their pouch or box in the coat tail pocket. When feeling for it they invariably feel in the wrong pocket. I presume there are 3,000,000 tobacco-smokers in this country. Each one averages ten chews per day; each one consumes fifteen cigarettes per day in feeling in the wrong pocket. Here are 45,000,000 minutes per day lost and gone. How Yankos goings over sought to save these precious hours and days and weeks? It has, I am the man. My invention or substitute is a glass box suspended to the neck by a string. It is in sight, handy to reach, and, if empty, the fact can be seen without opening it."

"When you want a glass of ginger ale or soda," continued the old man as he gathered up a rip in the leg of his pants, "you have to come down with a nickel. Do I? Not much! I imitate the same as you do, enjoy it the same, and, when through, tell the man he can either pump me out or let me go."

"When you want a lunch you must pay 30 to 75 cents. Do I? Not by a fat fall of horns! I rush in, rattle the keys and nails in my pocket, fill up, and then softly remark that I'm ready to be kicked. But they never do it. It would raise a row, drive away custom and give the place a bad name."

"If you rent a house you must pay the rent. If I rent one I have one of the children rubbed with croton oil, and the owner pays me to move out for fear of the small-pox. If you ride in a hack you must pay. If I ride in one I become insane and the driver is glad enough to see me go my way. If you run in debt at the grocery you must pay for the stock. If I run in debt the grocery won't throw good money after bad. When you want good money after bad, when I want 'em I find some drunkard asleep in an alley. And yet people are fools enough to believe that philosophy and broadcloth go hand in hand, and that wit and genius move only in good society!"—Detroit Free Press.

Woodcock Telegraphy.
On a number of occasions I have closely observed the woodcock's system of telegraphy. The bird's mandibles are furnished with extremely sensitive nerves, so arranged that when the point of the bill rests upon the ground the slightest sounds are conveyed to its brain. Standing upon the water-saturated earth of a spouty bog, our bird utters a faint, keen cry, scarcely audible at two rods' distance, then immediately lets fall his head till the tip of his bill touches the ground, and listens attentively. If his mate hears him she replies, puts her bill on the ground, and listens in turn. So the love messages go back and forth as long as the birds have anything to say. This sort of thing usually happens in the soft twilight from May to the middle of August, though occasionally I have seen and heard it in the broad light of a summer day. In June, 1868, I made the following note:

Five years later I succeeded in getting three more sketches and last year (1880) I got four more. Many of these and kindred sketches have been obtained at the end of indescribable care and labor. The woodcock is so shy, so attentive, so sensitive, that the least sound will cause it to skulk and hide—a thing it does with even greater cunning and success than the quail. The only way in which I ever have been able to get near enough to the bird to sketch its natural attitudes has been to crawl on the wet ground through tangled weeds and shrubs until I reached a hiding place on the border of its feeding range, and there patiently and silently watch for its coming. This I have done over and over again for days together before getting sight of the bird.—Chicago Tribune.

"Is there the common dog passage?" inquired a venerable looking lady, as she surveyed a bunch of bananas over her spectacles the other day.

She said so—A lady from out of town was heard to say, "My husband gave me some money to go to Janesville and get me a silk dress and dolman with. He told me to look around and buy where I could the cheapest. I did so; I went into every dry goods store in the city with the following result: I bought 20 yards of black silk from Archie Reid 10 cents a yard cheaper than I could get it anywhere else, and on my dolman, I know I saved $4.00, sure. I just took those six dollars I saved, and bought my husband a nice Christmas present with it, and now I am happy."

An old angler says that a fish does not suffer much pain from being hooked. Of course not. It is the thought of how his weight will be tied about that causes him anguish.

Archie Reid will open this week new goods for the holiday trade. He has been in the market the past few days making selections.

It is estimated that every time a train of cars of the average length stops it costs in wear and tear of material and loss of power fully seventy-five cents. This is what makes a conductor always look so cheerful when he hanks up at a flag station in the middle of a snow-storm to take on a string of onions and a man with a dead-head pass.

It's nose-ache—to suffer with dyspepsia or pleurisy, or inflammation of the kidneys, when by going to the Grand hotel or to Stearns & Baker's drugstore, you can get a bottle of E. S.
